CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY The best of the Agency's analysts have given up on this one. After the Cuban fiasco, the odds were umpteen to one that Richard Bissell, the operation's mastermind and No. 3 man in the CIA, would be replaced. The agency now has a new chief, John McCone, the No. 1 man, Gen. Charles Cabell, father of the D-2, has retired (and has not yet been replaced). Bissell, however, is still sitting in the No. 3 spot.
